education

Bachelor of Architecture (B. Arch.), College of Architecture and Planning, Ball State University, May 2003

experience

As a Project Manager and Architect for Barduson Architects, Adam provides direction for architecture, illustration, planning, programming, schematic design, detail design, construction documents, construction administration and interiors services. Prior to working with Barduson Architects, Adam worked as Studio Design Lead for Aspen Group's Indiana office. He also worked as a Project Manager for firms including American Structurepoint and MSKTD, which are located in the Midwest. His experience has included healthcare, educational, commercial, religious, and retail projects encompassing all aspects of the architectural process.

Adam has a keen eye for providing client's the most functional and cost effective solutions, while still maintaining a high standard for design excellence. He is a Manager of Project Managers and is a delightful, positive presence on the jobsite. Adam's integrity and work ethic are consistently applied both at the office, as well as at home.
